UNIVERSITY DESIGN COMPETITION SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITY

ABOUT THE COMPETITION

Timber Development UK in partnership with the New Model Institute of Technology and Engineering (NMITE) and the Passivhaus Trust are launching a national design competition which will see interdisciplinary teams of Built Environment students and 2021 graduates from UK universities work together to design a community centre and 'Skills Hub' at Southside in Hereford.

University students will be challenged to explore a 'net zero' scheme built from timber and timber hybrid systems, materials that are commonly used in modern methods of construction (MMC). The scheme's priorities must be environmentally 'super-green', creatively employ sustainable building materials and methods, produce more energy than it consumes, be designed for disassembly and reuse, and also emphasise health and well-being at an individual, family and community level.
